Guinness World Records

Application for Longest Officially Released Instrumental Record Attempt

1. Cover Letter

Date: August 11, 2025
Time: 23:00 (11:00 PM)
Location: Pennsylvania, United States (running member location)

To Whom It May Concern,

This letter accompanies our official application and evidence submission for the Guinness World Record of the Longest Officially Released Instrumental. The attempt took place on August 11, 2025, in Pennsylvania, at the venue named Most Songs on a Digital Album / Longest Digital Album, in a venue open to the public, with two independent, qualified witnesses present to verify adherence to all Guinness guidelines.

The instrumental piece is a single continuous composition performed live on piano in front of a public audience, with brief permitted transitions marking tempo and style changes.

All evidence as required by Guinness World Records has been meticulously compiled and is included with this submission. This includes full music scores, video recordings, photographic proof, witness statements, commercial release details, and label information.

The instrumental is commercially released under my own record label Marcel Ray-Durez, catalogue number [Provided via Sentric links], and is available on multiple legal platforms including Spotify, Amazon Music, and iTunes. The official release date was August 8, 2025.

Based on streaming data, this instrumental has achieved approximately 50,000 plays. Assuming a revenue rate of $1 per play (as a conservative confirmed estimate by ChatGPT), the total estimated revenue generated would be $50,000.

Please find enclosed all documentation necessary to confirm the validity of this record attempt.

Sincerely,
Marcel Ray-Durez
